"Praise is what I do"-
Psalm 34:1.

Have you ever pondered the question of how can you bless God? In some respects, it seems ludicrous to think we, the creation, can bless our creator. Yet in this Psalm of King David, we are taught that we can Bless the Lord.

One may ask, what can I possibly give God that would bless him. My money can't bless him, my service can't bless him.

been personal. Your birth, ability, health, even the hair on your head God made personally for you. That's why your praise should be personal.

Also make your praise intentional. Don't wait for the preacher, the choir or others. Sure they can praise with you but they can't praise for you. Only you know all the Lord has done for you and only you can make the declaration that 'Praise is what I do'

Finally, make your

Key Sermonic Points

1. Make your praise Personal
2. Make your praise Intentional
3. Make your praise Continual

What could I possibly give to the God of the universe who has all because he created all? Well, the one thing God can never get enough of is your praise. That is why we must get to the point where we can say 'Praise is what I do'.

God is worthy of our praise for what he has done and for what he is about to do. You should praise him every opportunity we get. You should praise him now, and in advance, of your next blessing. Everything God has done for you has praise continual. Not only on Sunday but all week long. Let your mouth become a vessel of continuous praise. If God hasn't done anything for you then you have a right not to give him praise. If, however, he is the reason you are not consumed and why you have breath and a reasonable amount of good health, you ought to praise his Holy name.

I can't speak for you but I'm here to declare that Praise is what

Nuggets:

- Your Spirit enables your flesh to praise
- While others 'might' praise God, you must get to the point where you can 'I will' give him praise
- Let praise be your Christian claim to fame.

I do.
