“Learning and Living”

Ecclesiastes 1: 2-11 --our Annual Youth Day message.

While a big part of learning comes from life experiences, many of life’s mistakes can be avoided if we would Learn and then live rather than live and then learn. With age should come wisdom but as Oscar versus repeating them in our lives.

Stylish clothes and fancy cars are not of prime importance. Your Soul, not stuff, is what truly matters. In a revolving world, we have the assurance of a God who does not change. He sees, cares and remembers all that we do. Let us strive to live a life that is pleasing to our God. Our service,

Key Sermonic Points

1. Most things in life are not that important.
2. Don’t Repeat Mistakes – Defeat Mistakes.
3. What people won’t remember about you, God will.

Wilde said, “Sometimes age comes alone.”

Our text reminds us that there is nothing really new under the sun. Everything has, in essence, been done before by those who came before us. It is wise, therefore, to use the advice of mentors, parents and others, so we can learn from and through their mistakes worship, praise and wholesome living will give God many good things to remember us for.

Nuggets:

- Parents CAN’T BE you, but they can HELP YOU
- Give God good things to remember about you.
- People spend most of their lives trying to get money only to spend most of their money trying to get a life.
- Learn from others the best way to live and then live based on what you’ve learned.
- The quality of one’s clothes pales in comparison to the quality of one’s education.

“The journey of the Circle of Life is made easier when you have the directions, detours and bumps in the road already laid out for you.”
